PREFACE

SOURCES

1. The Nanking, New China Handbook

Published by the Ministry of Information of the Nanking Government in November 1943. It is generally called the Nanking Yearbook to distinguish it from the China Handbook published by the Chungking Government.

Government structure, positions and many of the names and characters are derived from this Yearbook.

2. Monitored enemy radio broadcasts

While these constitute a main source of current information on Occupied China, they are often inaccurate and unreliable at the source. The difficulty of accurately monitoring Chinese names further complicates the use of them as source of information.

3. Occupied Chinese newspapers and periodicals

4. Other miscellaneous and published sources

CHINESE NAMES

The Wade-Giles system of romanization has been used throughout, except in the case of Cantonese names where it has been impossible to determine the correct Mandarin equivalent.

Characters for names have been supplied in the alphabetical list when they were available.

PREFACE (Continued)

NOTES

"Former," indicates that, according to announcement, the person has been removed from the post, but his successor is unknown.

"Former (?)" indicates doubt that the person still occupies the post.

Parentheses around a name indicates romanization of doubtful accuracy and for which there are no available characters.

FOOTNOTES

In many cases, different sources report different persons occupying the same post. Names for the list were chosen on the basis of probable reliability of source, date of source, and other related reports. The other person (or persons) reported to occupy the post is shown in a footnote by the use of "Or", followed by the name, followed by the date of the report in parenthesis.

A name in a footnote followed by a question mark indicates possible alternate romanization of the name.

of Rice Control:

Yuan Li-tun

* Announced by Tokyo, 7 June 1944 (in Japanese, for home consumption) as a "recently-organized" body which would "issue notification of duties connected with the municipal administration of Shanghai." Its chief function would be to solve the problems of rice control. Twenty-five (25) members were announced, which, with the exception of the above few, were persons hitherto not prominent in Shanghai affairs. Since this time, little, if any, mention has been made of this apparently Japanese-created body.

 Various reported as "Investigation Committee for Resources and Materials Control" or "Commodity Price Control Committee." Created by a Nanking Mandate, 28 July 1943 (Man Hua Jih Pao, 30 July 1943) It may be under nominal jurisdiction of the Ministry of Industry, but is probably controlled by the Shanghai Special Municipality. Its chief concern is the purchase and price of rice. (RGC Radio Report on the Far East #57, 27 October 1944, page E3.)
